

Client: Indian Institute of Management – Ahmedabad (IIM-A)

Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad (IIM-A) a leading Management Education institution has been consistently ranked as the best management school in India and among the best in the world. In its formative years, IIM-A collaborated with the Harvard Business School (HBS) to pioneer the case method of teaching in India.

Project Description

This premier institution envisaged the usage and importance of web technology to put course content online for access by the students. Web-based discussion forums, quiz and assignments were other tools, which were found to be quite useful and relevant to the case study method of teaching at IIM-A.

TeN Solution

TeN used its flagship product "Acado", a comprehensive suite of software tools, for creating, managing and delivering learning content and assessment items in an online environment. In addition to content-related tools, Acado's integrated tools for communication and collaboration such as message board was provided and is being extensively used by faculty and students. The Digital Library module was also used for providing supplementary learning resources. For the purpose of generating the grades of courses, IIM-A uses the Performance Tool of Acado. Another feature provided on request was for the creation of groups within a course for students to work on projects.
